HUNTERS ARE VIOLATING LAW

R. F. McBride Calls Attention to Irregularities Now Being Practiced

LOCAL HUNTERS SHOULD HELP

Evidence of Sex of Deer Should Not Be Destroyed By Hunters

R. F. McBride, county ranger and special game warden, returned Monday from the Graham mountains where he made a special investigation of the conditions regarding hunters. Mr. McBride found evidence of violation of the state game laws and wishes the GUARDIAN to warn local hunters to be more careful.

In one instance he found the legs of a spotted fawn. The law expressly specifies that they shall not be killed.

Many hunters are in the habit of dressing deer in the woods and bringing them into camp with all evidence of sex destroyed. While the new law does not specify clearly on this point, it is Mr. McBride's opinion and he proposes to act thereon, that the part of the old law making this a misdemeanor was not annulled. He especially wishes to warn hunters to desist from destroying the evidence of sex.

"A special effort will be made by the game warden and his deputies to thoroughly enforce the state game laws in its entirety," says Mr. McBride. "Since most of the hunters in the mountains are local people, it should be to their interest to assist in the protection of game and they should help rather than deter the action of the wardens."

"One of the men who was deputized to issue licenses ran out of blanks and in lieu thereof wrote permits and gave verbal authority to hunters. Such authority cannot be recognized as the game laws plainly provides in section two that permits must be on blanks furnished by the state game warden."

Mr. McBride says there is a goodly number of deer in the mountains but at present they are in the lower places where the brush and timber is heavy and therefore are hard to get. A little later they will frequent the higher places and hunting will be more profitable.

NINETY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY

About seventy-five guests gathered at the home of J. W. N. Scarlett Wednesday afternoon to celebrate the ninety-sixth birthday of Grandpa Quinn, the oldest democrat in Arizona.

The celebration took the form of a dinner. The tables were loaded down with all the good things of the season and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent by Grandpa Quinn and his guests.

Grandpa Quinn is enjoying fine health and is as sprightly as a 16-year old, and declares he will live to see his one-hundredth birthday. He was recipient of many fine presents and greatly enjoyed the celebration given him by his friends and relatives.

NEW FIXTURES

Store of Solomon Commercial Co. Taking Shape

The Solomon Commercial Co. received new fixtures for its mercantile establishment this week. They have been installed and the chaotic state, incidental to putting in a large stock, has disappeared and the store begins to take on the appearance of a metropolitan merchandising establishment. When all completed the company will have the most up-to-date store in the valley, not alone in appearance but in the line of merchandise handled.

The company is announcing in this issue of the GUARDIAN the formal opening for October 16, in which the people are informed as to the various lines to be found in this store.

More than 3,000 small logging operators now buy national forest timber; at least 25,000 persons, settlers, miners, stockmen, and others, obtain timber from Uncle Sam's big woodlot for their own use free of charge.

The forests of Corsica, the little island upon which Napoleon was born, are managed by the French government. They produce lumber, firewood, and turpentine, and all parts of the tree are far more closely utilized than in America.

BRIGHT BOY WANTED

Rhodes Scholarship Examination To Be Held Next Week in Tucson

The annual examination for the Rhodes scholarship will be held at the University of Arizona Tuesday and Wednesday, October 14th and 15th. The state of Arizona is entitled to the appointment of one Rhodes scholar in each of two years out of three to study at Oxford for a period of three years with a stipend of $1500 per year.

The examinations for the scholarship are in arithmetic, algebra or geometry, English, Latin and Greek, but the examination in Greek may be deferred until after the appointment is made on the basis of the other subjects. The trustees of the Rhodes fund make this allowance because Greek is so seldom studied in the high schools and colleges of America. The examinations are reasonable both in content and in length. They are under the conduct of officers of the university, the papers being read at Oxford.

Arizona has been fortunate in the young men who have been appointed to the Rhodes scholarship from this state, and the University of Arizona desires a larger interest among young men in the great advantages of the Rhodes scholarship.

It is required that a candidate for the examination shall have completed before his entrance upon the scholarship in the fall of 1914, the equivalent of the sophomore year in an American college.

Young men interested in taking the examination should notify Dr. A. H. Wilde, president of the University of Arizona, of this intention. A few sample examination papers may be had on request.

FOREST NOTES

It is said that 90,000,000 broom handles are used annually in the United States; one for each man, woman, and child.

Contrary to popular belief, forest fires seldom travel more than two or three miles an hour. Even in extreme cases it is questionable whether they burn at a rate of more than six to ten miles an hour.

Uncle Sam's forest rangers require that permanent camp sites within the forest shall be kept in sanitary condition. The ubiquitous tin can must be buried, and waste paper burned when a camp is left.

Manufacturers of artificial limbs are seeking substitutes for English willow, used because of its combined lightness and strength. It is claimed that the Port Orford cedar of the Pacific Coast will prove equally serviceable.
